

Today's Performers

Austin Organ, Op. 2399 (1964)
3 Manuals, 48 Ranks

Kyoko Tagami Meredith was named Director of Music at First Presbyterian Church of Katonah this past July. Before moving to New York in 2013, Kyoko worked in churches in both the US and Japan as organist and music director. She studied church music and organ at Westminster Choir College and Oberlin Conservatory.

Margaret Kim is Minister of Music at Scarsdale Community Baptist Church. Margaret holds a Master of Music degree from Seoul National University and a Bachelor of Music in Church Music from Concordia College, Bronxville, NY.

Tim Keenan-Devlin was awarded the AGO Service Playing Certificate in 2005 and is currently assisting at St. Augustine's in Ossining and St. Anthony's in Yonkers, and was a participant in the "Careers in the Arts Initiative-Mentorship Program," sponsored by The Kennedy Center, Washington, DC. For the last year, he has played piano weekly at the Kensington Assisted Living Facility in White Plains in its therapeutic music program for Alzheimer's patients.

Janet Kae Jacobsen served as organist and choir director for the Ridgeview Congregational Church (UCC) and is an active substitute in the Westchester area and a regular guest at Scarsdale Community Baptist Church.

Craig Degener is an active member of the AGO, an avid concert goer and a member of Irvington Presbyterian Church. He is currently an organ student of Dr. F. Anthony Thurman.

Frank Miller has accompanied major recording artists including Judy Collins and Luciano Pavarotti. He has played at Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center and Radio City Music Hall, and has even played for U.S. Presidents, and he is very active in designing and voicing Allen Organs.

Anthony Rispo began playing the organ by ear at the age of 9, and formal organ studies at the age of 13, studying with Donald Dumler, Dr. Matthew Lewis at The Juilliard School's Pre-College Division, and Todd Wilson at The Cleveland Institute of Music. A composer and organist, he has recently launched a movement/campaign entitled, "Music For Tomorrow", where he uses the stories of individuals to create songs. He will soon record his catalogue of songs and tour with his band, which includes Grammy award winning drummer Vito Luizzi.

Terence J. Flanagan is Music Director at the Presbyterian Church of Mount Kisco. He currently serves on the Executive Committee of the Westchester Chapter of the American Guild of Organists and is a member of The St. Wilfrid Club, primarily consisting of area organists. His free time is spent working with plants.

Jonathan Riss, AAGO, ChM, is Director of Choirs at Hastings High School and Farragut Middle School in Hastings-on-Hudson, and Director of Music Ministries at the Presbyterian Church of White Plains. He currently studies organ improvisation and conducting with Dr. Justin Bischof.

Sandor Szabo, FAGO, holds master degrees in piano, organ and sacred music and a doctorate in piano performance. Currently is the Minister of Music/Organist at The Reformed Church of Bronxville, NY, Music Director/Conductor of The Oratorio Society of New Jersey and Choir Director/Organist at B'nei Abraham Temple, Livingston NJ.

The AGO would like to thank The Rev. Jeff Geary, Jonathan Riss and the Church Council for their hospitality.
